EFFECTIVE BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS

Instructions: You are going to study two situations about common issues on Effective Business Communications in the workplace. You are going to offer solutions/proposals/ and recommendations to resolve these issues.

Issue Number 01	Weekly meetings have always been boring and repetitive. For one hour each Friday, staff members in your department listen to the traditional and non-interactive format of a long, dragging department meeting.
Scenario	You want to suggest and propose new ways to your supervisor to conduct the department meeting in a more engaging way. How are you going to present an effective proposal to your boss?
YOUR PROPOSAL:	MY PROPOSAL: 1 2. 3.

Issue Number 02	You are being sent by your manager to present a business proposal to your long-time client about increasing the subscription number of their items from 100 to 500. Your department needs to meet high sales targets this month, and this proposal is one way to help achieve that goal.
Scenario	You will be meeting with the Department Manager and the Purchasing Officer of your client account, and they have agreed to a 30-minute meeting. What will your business pitch look like? How are you going to convince them to support your sales objectives?
PROJECT PROPOSAL	MY BUSINESS PITCH STRATEGY 1 2. 3.
